PALAISEAU, June 9, 2022 – For its second participation in the QS World University Rankings (QS WUR), and second year in a row, Institut Polytechnique de Paris (IP Paris) is among the Top 50 of the world's best universities, ranked 48th, moving up one place compared to the QS WUR 2022. IP Paris also ranks 11th worldwide in terms of Employer Reputation, moving up 4 places.

Major player and reference on the French and international scene of higher education and research institutions, Institut Polytechnique de Paris is in the top 4% of the world's 1,422 institutions ranked by QS.

IP Paris is 2nd in France, for the second year in a row.

This recognition of the excellence of its five founding Schools – École Polytechnique, ENSTA Paris, ENSAE Paris, Télécom Paris, and Télécom SudParis – acknowledges the growing performance of IP Paris at the international level.

These results, reflecting the commitment of the five Schools staff and teams, are based on the strong scientific contributions of its Faculty, the worldwide Employer Reputation, a very good Faculty-to-Students ratio, as well as a very strong and growing international outreach. Which is demonstrated by both the recruitment of its students (41% of international students) and its Academic Staff (44% of international Faculty). IP Paris offers one of the best educational environments internationally.

"Three years after its creation and only one year after its first entry in the QS ranking, Institut Polytechnique de Paris continues to grow. Its strengths, as a world-class institution of higher education and research, are recognized and we can be proud of our collective efforts," states Eric Labaye, President of Institut Polytechnique de Paris.
